Questions 19-21, NOTE: The American Bar Association requires that law schools inform each applicant that state bar requirements deal with the character and fitness of an applicant at the time he or she seeks certification to register for the bar. It further permits the law school to seek information on character and fitness to ensure that appropriate law school qualifications are met. The following questions represent areas of inquiry made by the bar authorities in most states and must be answered with a "Yes" or a "No." Failure to do so will delay action by the Admission Committee. Indicate "No" if not applicable. If "Yes," state fully all the facts, including dates and results, on a separate sheet of paper.

19. Are you now in proceedings in which you may be or have you ever been dismissed, suspended, warned, placed on academic or social probation, expelled, disciplined or requested or advised to resign from any (be sure to answer all three items below):

Because of the high ethical standards to which lawyers are held, the failure to disclose an act or event is often more significant, and leads to more serious consequences, than the act or event itself. Furthermore, you may be denied admission to practice by a state if your bar exam application contains facts not disclosed in your application for admission.

I understand and agree that any false statement, or the omission, misrepresentation or concealment of any significant fact in my answers to these questions, or failure to update my answers to make them true and correct at the time I enroll, may be considered sufficient reason for refusal of admission, expulsion after admission, revocation of credits or degree or for denial of admission to the Bar by the appropriate state agency.
