

Relman & Dane, a civil rights law firm, is accepting applications for a litigation associate position in its Washington, D.C., office.

OVERVIEW

Relman & Dane specializes in fair housing, fair lending, public accommodations, police accountability, and employment discrimination litigation. Our nationwide civil rights practice includes cases involving race, disability, gender, sexual orientation, familial status, and national origin discrimination and serves all protected classes.

RESPONSIBILITIES

The associate will litigate cases in federal and state courts, write and review briefs, motion papers, and affidavits, interview and prepare witnesses, take and defend depositions, and participate in all aspects of the Firm's cases. The level of responsibility will depend upon the experience of the applicant.

EXPERIENCE AND QUALIFICATIONS

Applicants should have a demonstrated commitment to civil rights enforcement, strong academic credentials, superior research, writing, and verbal skills, and the ability to carry a varied caseload. Two to three years of litigation experience is preferred.

COMPENSATION

Relman & Dane offers a generous compensation and benefits package, commensurate with experience and within the parameters of the Firm's compensation scale.

HOW TO APPLY

Please send a letter of interest, a resume, one legal writing sample, a law school transcript, and a list of names and telephone numbers for three references to Taryn Scott, Relman & Dane, 1225 Nineteenth Street, NW, Suite 600, Washington, D.C. 20036. The legal writing sample should reflect the applicant's own work without significant revision from others. Applications will be considered on a rolling basis until the position is filled.

Relman & Dane values diversity and is an equal opportunity employer. For more information about the firm, please visit our website at www.relmanlaw.com.
